

CAS Product Management: Customer- and values-oriented Strategy – Practice - Leadership

The product manager is like a Swiss Army Knife, someone prepared for all contingencies. In this Certificate of Advanced Studies, we will de-mystify this complicated profession through well-established knowledge, relevant practical exercises and reflection. We will be visiting companies that demonstrate excellent customer orientation through inspiring, values-oriented leadership. In the end, you'll have a diverse toolbox for your everyday challenges and a transformed idea of how product management serves people and the planet.

When all is said and done, you'll leave with a critical eye toward methods that are pure buzzwords and appreciation for methods which really work. The goal is to support you in being more confident in your product management tasks and also in your leadership by defining your values... and working from them.
